Ingalls in a Dilemra-Civil-Service Examination-Yellow-Fever on Shipboard-Personal, Etc.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.] WASHINGTON, D. C., August 31 .- It is understood that the caucus of the Republican senators last night was not altogether harmonious. Senator Manderson made a speech in behalf of a reduction in the tariff on lumber, but this was bitterly opposed by the representatives of the and the people who want to build frame houses will continue to pay the present duty on lumber if the Senate substitute becomes a law.

IN A DILEMMA. Senators Plumb and Ingalis were conspicuous by their absence from the caucus for the reason, as generally believed, that they were opposed to the 50 per cent reduction on sugar duties embodied in the substitute. The people of Kansas have engaged quite largely in the manufacture of sugar from sorghum, and their senators do not care to go on record hole in his head which looked like a as agreeing to the reduction of the tax pistol-shot wound, and puzzled the on that article. When the substitute comes to a vote in the Senate, however, if it ever does, they will have to show their heards. If they dodge and fail to their hands. If they dodge and fail to vote the Democrats will defeat the bill, while if they vote in favor of it their constituents will hold them responsible for its passage. It is said that some of the Republican senators are well pleased at the delemma in which Mr. Ingalls finds himself, in view of the famous confiden tial letter written by him, in which he vented his spleen on the senatorial candidates for the Republican nomination at Chicago.
